

Homepage will have an unintrusive layout with easily accessed links to other pages and social media at the top and bottom.

The image of Milly will change when hovered over to add a touch of levity.

About section will keep the same style of layout, with content scrolled through on slider.

Image of Milly to be different to first page

This page is dedicated to Milly’s podcast, Tea with the Morale Queen. It will feature the latest episode, links of where to subscribe, and a button that links to a page where people can support the podcast.

Image used will be the official Tea with the Morale Queen image.

This page will feature the latest news on Milly's endeavours. Images will be aligned to the right of the relevant news article, and once clicked will take the user to the relevant site or source.

Both the tablet and mobile versions of the homepage will lose the side image and it's hover changeability, in place of a new image of Milly peeking up from the bottom of the screen.

The menu across the site on tablet and mobile devices will change to a dropdown menu, with links to the other pages.

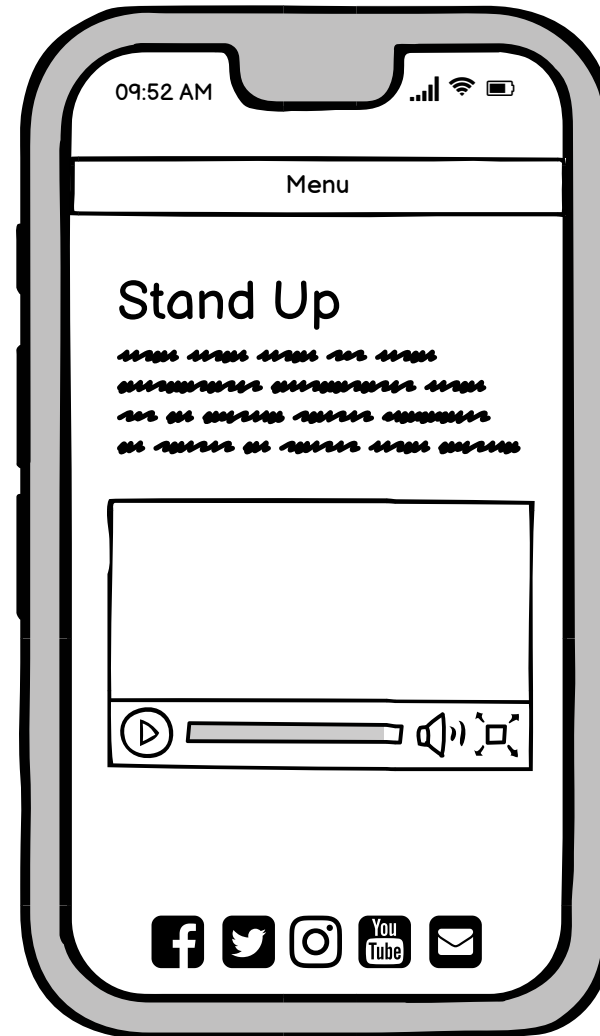

In similar fashion to the homepage, both the tablet and mobile versions of the about page will lose the side image, in place of a new image of Milly peeking up from the bottom of the screen.

The menu across the site on tablet and mobile devices will change to a dropdown menu, with links to the other pages.

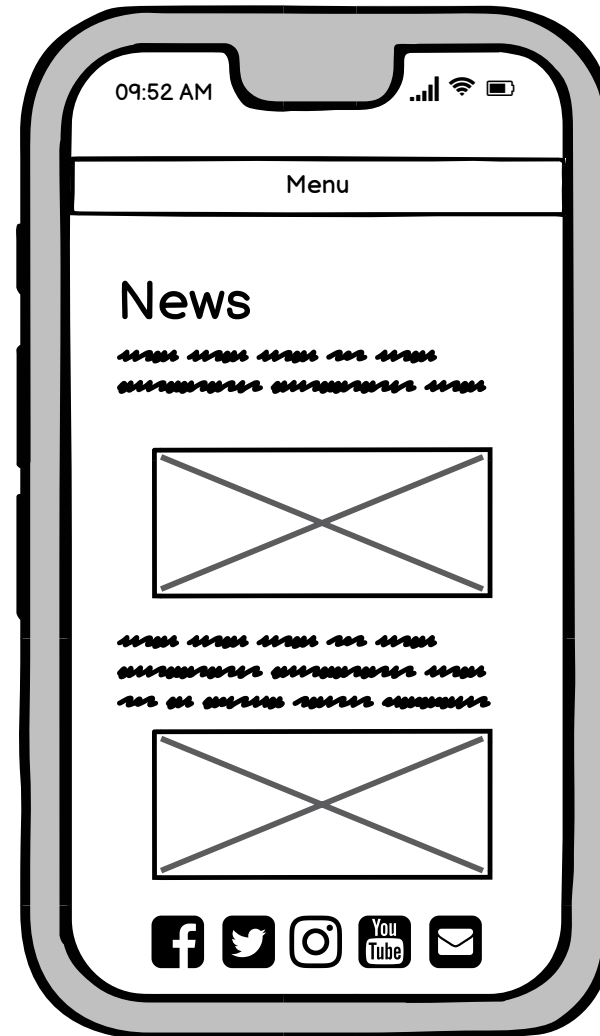

Tablet and Mobile versions of the podcast page will remain largely the same, with the exception of the image which will be removed and replaced by a new image at the bottom of the screen.

The stand up page on mobile and tablet will remain the same as before, with elements such as the embedded video resizing to accommodate the smaller screen size.

The news page on mobile and tablet will remain the same as before, with the images moving from a right hand view to appearing directly beneath the relevant news story.

Arguably the page that will see the least change is the contact page, with elements resizing to accommodate the different screen sizes.

Again the image of Milly peeking up will feature at the bottom.
